Mr. De Pew-The Negroes. We are glad to know that Mr. Dr Pew is not willing to rest under the imputation of having made certain remarks about the southern people which were lately attributed to him. In the last interview with to the world? him which the papers have reported be made a very shrewd remark-one which shows that he understands the negro character and the relations which exist, or ought to exist, between the whites and the blacks of the South. We allude to his reblacks of the South. We allude to his remark that if the negroes would let politics alone the southern people would treat them better than the northern people do. This remark silver was presented, and Mr. Eustis moved northern people do. This remark does not go quite far enough. A southern man would say that the southern whites already treat the negroes better than the northern whites do. Here they are recognized as human beings. In the North they are overlooked, or seem to be regarded as objects of contempt. The difference between the treatment accorded to him by the people of the South and that accorded to let his resolution he constitutional amendment proposed by him for the election of senat

Philadelphia, or any other northern city.

If the negre would let politics alone he would only do what he ought to do. What benefit has resulted to him from his long, faithful, and untiring labors in behalf of scalawags, carpet-baggers, and other unprincipled characters? He has been used as a mere cat's-paw by his pretended friends of the Republican party. He has done all the voting, and they have reaped all the honors and pocketed all the money and If the negro would let politics alone he filled all the offices. Perhaps we ought to use some qualifying words; but the broad statement is so nearly true that we leave it as we penned it.

If the negro would let polities alone he would soon recognize the fact that the southern white men are the lost friends by honors and pocketed all the money and would soon recognize the fact that the southern white men are the best friends he has in the world. So long as he dabbles in politics and listens to the harangues of the scamps who use him as a tool he will continue to have prejudices against these best friends, and will persist in believing that they would in some way harm him. Let him break the shackles which he allows to bind him to the Republican party, and he will not long afterwards have anything but good words and kind feeling for the superior race. He needs only to cut loose from bad associations to realize that he has made a great mistake in disregarding the counsels of the truest friends he has in the world.

Facts for Wall Street.

The late advance in the price of silver

The late advance in the price of silver roves that Congress can by friendly legison at least do something to advance the price of silver as compared with the price of gold. It is easy to say that the ce of silver is fixed in the markets of the world, and that we can do nothing to increase or diminish that price; but it is not easy to reconcile such a statement with the facts of the case. The Atlanta Constitation has the following sensible remarks on this subject:

The Advance in Silver Bullion.—The organs of Wall street have been claiming all along that no action this country could take would have any appreciable effect on the price of silver. This has been their stock argument. They have persistently argued that in the event of free coinage the country would be flooded with depreciated dollars. This question, they explain, is an international one, and the way to compel Europe to remonetize silver is for the United States to stop coining it altogether and aid in depreciating it—thus giving away their own argument, for if free coinage here would have no effect on silver in Europe, how could its further demonetization have any effect?

As a matter of fact, the United States are the largest producers of silver in the world, and have the power to absolutely control the silver bullion market if they choose. Free coinage would bring silver to a par with gold the world over. Even the reasonable certainty that the present Congress will legislate in favor of silver has had considerable effect on the price of builtion.

The silver bill which the Senate and had considerable effect on the price of builton.

The silver bill which the Senate and House have practically agreed on provides for the purchase, by the Secretary of the Treasury, of 4.500,000 ounces of silver monthly, or at the rate of about $60,000,000 a year, and for the redemption of the notes issued on this silver in lawful money.

This is not satisfactory to those who believe in the complete remonetization of silver, but the bare prospect of such legislation has had a tremendous effect on the price of silver builtion. A week ago it was ninety-six cents an ounce, but during that time it has risen to 102 cents an ounce. This rise has taken place in New York. But the effect has been fell in the London market. Last Tuesday silver advanced half a penny in London; on Wednesday three eighths, on Thursday three fourths of a penny. Altogether, silver has advanced two pence in London.

The Wall-street organs should take these facts to heart and consider them.

The South.

The South is the best part of this country. No doubt about that fact. All that has kept her back so long has been the presence here of an element that foreigners are not familiar with, nor accustomed to, and therefore fear or dread. Slavery almost erected a wall around the southern States. Slavery is gone; but the ne-groes who constituted the slaves remain with us, and are still exercising an influence against the migration of northern settlers to the agricultural regions of the South. The towns and cities are not so much affected by this uncongenial element. The Providence Journal says :

much affected by this uncongenial element. The Providence Journal says:

"There is one peculiar feature of the state of business in the country which can hardly escape notice, and that is a somewhat remarkable contrast between many parts of the South and most sections of the rest of the country. There is undoubtedly a less confident and a less satisfied feeling in the North and in the West than there is in the South. In most sections of the North where there are large manufacturing industries there are complaint that business is not as prosperous as it should be, even where it is active. The agricultural interests about these manufacturing judustries are depressed as never before. In the West agricultural depression is general, and is calling for serious attention. But the situation seems to be entirely different in the South. This section, which has been struggling with adversities due to the war while other sections. And it seems to be entitled to boast to some extent. There is an unminately before in the South and North Carolina. A spirit of enterprise is abroad in these States. We hear of new furnaces, factories, shops, and mines down there, and agriculture is everything possible to spread it. of tempting viands; all that the locality can supply in the way of a pleasant climate—that is to say, a hotel constructed as to be a sort of sanitarium to those persons who seek in the South every winter what they cannot find at ome in the matter of temperature. In a word, the hotel needed in Richmond is one that will cost several bundred thousand lollars. It will make its own business; and so we need not fear that it will lack for patronage, or that it will cause any hotel now here to lack for patronage. We have talked for years about building such a hotel. Why not proceed to redeem the promises which we have so long held out

ANOTHER ONE ON HARRISON.

He told a story of Senator Ingalls going to the White House to secure an office. On the way he met with a friend, who told him he would not get it, as Harrison had a friend in Kansas that he was going to appoint. The Senator scratched his head a moment and said: "That is right, if he is sure of it; but I am pretty well acquainted with that State, and if he has a friend there I don't know it." [Laughter.]

Mr. Bland, of Missouri, discussed the monetary question and made an argument in favor of the tree coinage of silver. Mr. Cannon, after devoting some time to a defence of the provisions of the bill, denied the charge made by Mr. Allen to the effect that many Federal appointees in Mississippi were men of bad character. When the gentleman was making that charge he (Cannon) could not help thinking that while there were thousands of postmasters to be appointed in each State there was but one State treasurer to be elected. (Laughter.) He then proceeded with comments amid laughter on the list of the defaulting treasurers of southern States. ANOTHER ONE ON HARRISON

THE CIVIL-SERVICE LAW A PRAUD. Mr. Spinola, of New York, made an at-tack upon the civil-service law, which he said was un-Jeffersonian, un-Democratic, un-American, and that there were not five year on the other saids who honestly be-un-American, and that there were not five men on the other side who honestly believed in it. It was a fraud, it had been operated as a fraud, and the present Administration had not paid the least regard to it whatever.

Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, said the anxiety manifested on the Democratic side in regard to the popularity and success of the Administration was the best sign that the Republican side ought to be satisfied with the Administration, and for one he was. At the proper time the Republican side would bring in a silver bill that would be satisfactory to the people.

REFURICAN VIEW OF THE CIVIL SERVICE.

REPUBLICAN VIEW OF THE CIVIL SERVICE. Speaking of the civil-service system he said that he did not believe that the law and said that he did not believe that the law and its administration was approved by one fifth of the members of either house. He believed that if each member of the House would vote his deliberate opinion he would declare that the whole system was founded on a mistake and its adfounded on a mistake and its administra-tion on false principles. It was detrimen-tal to the very purpose it aimed to accom-plish. [Applause.]

Mr. Clements: What civil-service reform was endorsed by the Chicago Conven-tion?

Mr. Grosvenor: To turn the Democrats contend by Econolitical in Hamalian.

Mr. Grosvenor: To turn the Democrass out and put Republicans in. (Laughter.) Mr. Grosvenor said that not only would he vote against increasing the force of the commission, but he would vote here and everywhere to repeal the whole law. [Ap-plause.] It was a fraud on the people of THE SYSTEM FINDS A FRIEND.

Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, defended the civil-service law and resented its being characterized as a humbug and a fraud. Finally, Mr. Dunnell, of Minnesota, moved to strike out the appropriation of $21,789 for clerks for senators.

Pending a vota the committee rose and Pending a vote the committee rose and the House adjourned.

Curcaso, April 22.—A dispatch from Fort Robinson, Neb., says: The treeps at this fort are under orders to be ready to take the field at a moment's notice to intercept Chevenne Indians who meditate leaving the Pine Ridge agency without permission to consult with others of their tribe in regard to certain lands. It is feared the old Indians cannot restrain the young bucks en route. Chief Tangled Hair and forty-four Indians came here yesterday and reported that they were in a starving condition. The commanding officer has ordered rations for them and they will be sent to the agency.

A New Hotel.

Richmond needs a new hotel. Richmond is abundantly able to build a new hotel. And Richmond ought not to postpone its erection any longer. There are hundreds of northern men who journey to the South every winter who would sojourn in this city for weeks if not for months if only we could offer to them such accompleted by a fine Richmond Dispatch. Noarous, April 22, 1890.

About midnight last night an unoccupied dwelling on Wythe street, in Portsmouth, was fired by an incendiary and to-tally destroyed. The property belonged to Mr. W. T. Cross, and was insured. Up about Chucstuck, on the Nansemond river, it is reported that the frost of Sunday night badly cut down the snap beans, cueumbers, Irish potatoes, and straw-berries, and that the loss in that region will be considerable to the growers of early vegetables. The truckers all believe now that the crops are comparatively free from freezes.

INTERESTING REVIVAL.

Rev. Joshna Hunter, pastor of the QueenStreet Methodist Episcopal church, is having a very interesting revival of religion in his congregation, and numerous conversions have resulted and a great many have been added to that church.

The Republicans here have organized what they call a National Republican League, with Colonel John M. Brockenbrough as president and various original Mahone men as officers. It is believed the organization is opposed to the renomination of Congressman Bowden. Mr. Bowden has his henchmen hard at work "laying pipes," but there is a strong opposing element developing in every direction in the district, while many anti-Mahone Republicans here defiantly declare they would rather see a Democrat elected than Bowden, and will use every possible effort to compass his defeat. A warm time is expected in the Republican camp in this section shortly. INTERESTING REVIVAL
